WILL BRING SOLDIER DEAD FROM BRITAIN

Bodies of 2,500 Yanks to Be Returned From England, Scotland and Ireland.

The first American soldier dead to be brought back to this country will be from England, Ireland and Scotland, Graves Registration Bureau of the War Department announces. Twenty-five hundred are buried in these countries.

The first contingent of the force to have charge of this work has been organized, and will sail when a transport is available. It consists of embalming experts, inspectors and others to arrange for the convey of the caskets. Other groups are being organized to remove bodies in Belgium, Luxembourg, Germany, Austria, Serbia and Italy. In these countries also there are approximately 2,500 American Expeditionary Force graves. Belgium has two American cemeteries, Poperinghe and Waereghen. Most of the American dead in Italy have been concentrated at Genoa.

Down In N'Orleans Today Festive Fizz Again Wets Long Parched Throats

Crescent City, Thronged For Racing Season, Turns From Dusky Gloom To Radiant Joy When Judge Foster Rules Liquor Sale Lawful.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 27.—New Orleans today was enjoying a bountiful Thanksgiving. Over at Ramos they were shaking up the festive gin fizz; Sazerac cocktails were again being poured into those big tumblers that Sazerac uses so that the nose may miss none of the aroma; down at the old Absinthe House, an aged French doorman smiled his blandest as the old customers began pushing their way through doors that long had been deserted.

New Orleans was wet today, and the old Crescent town felt natural. If the United States had been as well prepared for war as New Orleans was for Judge Foster's decision last night the war would have been over a long time ago, and there would have been no war-time prohibition.

An hour after Judge Foster, in compliance with the petition of the Herman Leiser, had enjoined Federal authorities from interfering with the sale of bonded liquors long lines stood in front of the bar.

Bartenders Pleased.

It was not necessary to conscript bartenders. They volunteered. Some of them were the regular orthodox bartenders of a day when personal liberty still had a definite meaning. Others were recruits. One well-known business man donned the apron at the Stag and aided the overworked bartenders.

A big crowd was here for the opening of the races today. They sat gloomily around the lobby of the St. Charles Hotel yesterday afternoon. Then came news of the decision by Judge Foster. In five minutes the lobby was deserted. The crowd had gone to the places where once more a gentleman could imbibe to the limit of that gentleman's desire and purse. Many of them stayed until the places were closed and then kissing the bartender good-night, promised to be back early this morning. It had been a long time since they were privileged to kiss the bartender good-night.

Few Fancy Drinks.

No attempt was made last night to sell fancy drinks. Whiskey straight was sold in most places at 25 cents for a drink. The drink was about half the size formerly sold, but then New Orleans used to be prodigal in the size of its drinks.

The old size sold at 35 to 50 cents. Wine was plentiful and at 25 per cent above the price charged when the war-time law went into effect July 1. Today fancy drinks were being mixed. Instead of a haphazard collection of bartenders as last night, the real artists were smilingly back in their old places, and the machinery for giving New Orleans, and the adjacent country a thorough wetting was moving. Saloon men said there is ample stock on hand to last until January 16.

The roadhouses and lake resorts, which had expected a quiet Thanksgiving, were scenes of bustle today. Loaded taxis began to bear down upon them last night. Between taking care of last night's crowd and preparing for an even bigger crowd today, employees at the roadhouses and resorts worked all last night and were not really prepared when today's rush began.

Great Crowds Arrive.

Like a crowd which lines up to see a world's series baseball game, New Orleans citizens and visitors began arriving before noon to be certain they would have a table. Few persons went without claret with their Thanksgiving dinner.

Meanwhile railroads were unloading great crowds at the Canal street station and thrifty residents of nearby towns began to join in the Thanksgiving celebration. Mississippi was also sending her quota.

Telegrams received here indicated that there was a hejira from the Texas oil fields of men anxious to look at some liquid other than petroleum. Fort Worth, Dallas and Houston were sending delegates.

Judge Foster, in granting the injunction, ruled that the world war came to an official end when Congress adjourned recently without rejecting the peace treaty with Germany. He maintained that when President Wilson vetoed the Volstead war-time prohibition act October 28, the President declared the army and navy demobilized.

BAR IS BEING FITTED ON GREAT LINER LEVIATHAN

Whether constitutional prohibition will operate to make American passenger liners dry has been referred to the legal department of the Shipping Board for a decision. Meanwhile, bar fixtures are being installed on the giant liner Leviathan, which is to be operated between New York and England.

Shipping Board officials explain that it will be nearly a year before this great craft would be ready for operation. Within a few months, however, former German liners are to be placed in the South American passenger trade, and a decision on the question is expected before that time.

MINE NATIONALIZATION WINS OUT IN ENGLAND

Laborite Candidate Defeats Lloyd George Nominee by Majority of 12,525.

DURHAM, England, Nov. 27.—John Lawson, laborite candidate running on a platform favoring nationalization of industry, has been elected member of parliament from the Chester Le Street division of Durham, as a result of the recent by-election, it was announced officially today. His majority was given as 12,525.

The announcement today was the first official statement in connection with the four by-elections held November 13. Two more announcements will be made tomorrow giving official results of the balloting at Croydon and Thanet. The fourth—and most interesting—that of Lady Nancy Astor, will be made Friday.

Chester Le Street is a typical mining constituency. The question of nationalization of mines was practically the sole issue. David Gilmour, an unofficial supporter of the Lloyd George government, was Lawson's opponent on a platform opposing nationalization.

At the last election, J. W. Taylor, laborite, who has just resigned, was returned unopposed.

EX-KAISER FEELS SAFE IN HIS HOLLAND HOME

Crown Prince, However, Fears He May Be Extradited, Says Amsterdam Paper.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 27.—The Telegraph, quoting "an authoritative source," says both the Netherlands government and former Emperor William of Germany still are confident that nothing will come of the report that there will be a demand for the extradition of the one-time Emperor. The newspaper adds that former Crown Prince Frederick-William, who, it says, has less to fear from extradition than his father, takes the matter more seriously.

The Telegraph's authority says that the breach between the former Emperor and his son, while it has not yet been healed, is less bitter, the son having yielded somewhat to his father because of the wishes of his mother.
